Mission

Founded in 1910, the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities is a museum of cultural history that preserves, interprets, and collects buildings, landscapes, and objects reflecting New England life from the seventeenth century to the present, for the enjoyment and benefit of all.

SPNEA promotes the highest standards of excellence in preservation, makes its technical expertise widely available, and uses its nationally significant collections as the basis for educational programs, exhibitions, research, and publications to further the appreciation and understanding of New England culture.

Cover: This view of sign painters in Roxbury on what must have been a warm late November day in 1899 is part of a group of more than five hundred turn-of-the-century cyanotypes SPNEA recently acquired. With another acquisition of views showing the dismantling of Boston's elevated rail superstructure in 1938, the new group makes it possible to compare specific changes in the urban landscape over forty years' time. See "Inside SPNEA" in this issue.
